PROCEEDINGS

THE CLERK: Please rise. The United States Bankruptcy
Court for the Eastern District of Missouri is now in session,
the Honorable Kathy A. Surratt-States presiding.

THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.

IN UNISON: Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Good morning. All right, this is a status hearing in the Patriot Coal Corporation case. Let me start first with appearances in the courtroom.

MR. WALSH: Good morning, Your Honor. Brian Walsh and Laura Hughes for the debtors.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. WILLARD: Good morning, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Greg Willard and Angie Schisler from Carmody MacDonald, on behalf of the official unsecured creditors' committee. I'd also like to mention, Your Honor, not appearing as counsel but appearing, should Your Honor have questions -- factual questions regarding their fee applications: on behalf of Houlihan, Matthew Mazzucchi; and on behalf of Mesirow, Adriana Vidal. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Good morning.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Good morning.

MS. LONG: Good morning, Your Honor. Leonora Long on behalf of the United States Trustee.

THE COURT: Good morning.

1	THE COURT: Good morning.
2	Ms. Saavedra on behalf of Citibank?
3	MS. SAAVEDRA: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
4	THE COURT: Good morning.
5	Mr. Cohen on behalf of the official committee of
6	salaried retirees?
7	MR. J. COHEN: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
8	THE COURT: Good morning.
9	And Mr. Peterson on behalf of Ernst & Young?
10	MR. PETERSON: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
11	THE COURT: All right. Good morning.
12	All right, and I'll remind everybody on the phone, if
13	you would please keep your phone on mute except when speaking;
14	that makes things run better here in the courtroom.
15	All right. Then, Mr. Walsh, I'm going to jump around
16	on the docket this morning, but I'm sure you'll follow along
17	with me.
18	MR. WALSH: Certainly.
19	THE COURT: All right, let's start. On page 1 there's
20	a number of claim objections that have been continued, motions
21	to amend claims, things of that nature; I'll just announce for
22	the record: the third omnibus objection; the fifth omnibus
23	objections, with the responses by two parties; the tenth
24	omnibus objection and a response; motion to amend claim, filed
25	by Michelin of North America; there's an omnibus objection to claim 914 and others, filed by Norfolk Southern; the fourteenth omnibus objection with the responses; and the fifteenth omnibus objection; that have all been continued to November 19th.

All right, then why don't we go over to page 3, at the bottom, and start with the omnibus objection to claim 1522, the eighteenth omnibus objection.

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. The eighteenth omnibus objection to what we refer to as the Palmer litigation involves twelve claims by plaintiffs in a claim in West Virginia State Court. The claims against the two debtor defendants -- Patriot Coal Corporation and Eastern -- were dismissed for failure to state a claim. And we've objected and requested the claims be disallowed on the basis of res judicata and the Rooker-Feldman doctrine. There has been no response from the claimants to that objection, and we request that it be sustained and those claims be disallowed.

THE COURT: All right, and likewise, the Court has seen no written response, so I'll sustain the objection. The claims will be disallowed.

All right, let's just keep going down the docket there. Next is the application to employ Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, as special labor-relations counsel. I see no written objections and I reviewed the application.

MR. WALSH: We are aware of no objections either, Your Honor. And --

THE COURT: All right, then I will approve that application.

MR. WALSH: Very good. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. The next is the omnibus application to expand the retention of professionals to include the new debtors.

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor. This is a matter that came up at our first-day hearing -- came up in the discussion in our first-day hearing, for the new debtors. As I mentioned, we discussed with the U.S. Trustee's office how we can get professionals retained without forcing everybody to spend a lot of money that the estate would have to pay for in a complicated process. And so this is what we came up with.

The motion addresses sixteen firms that work on behalf of the debtor; twelve of them have filed supporting declarations at this point, including a few that were filed yesterday. We would plan to follow up with the others to get those declarations on file, or perhaps in some cases the professionals know that they absolutely have no need whatsoever to do work for these two debtors, in which case we may withdraw as to those professionals, and that is Blackstone, Bowles Rice, Ernst & Young, and Veritas. So as I mentioned, we'll follow up with those.

1 declarations, and to continue it as to the four others, if 2
    that's acceptable to the Court.
 3
             THE COURT:
                          All right --
             MR. WALSH:
                         And of course --
 4
             THE COURT:
                          -- that is.
6
             MR. WALSH:
                         -- I'm happy to answer any questions you 7 may have.
8
             THE COURT: All right, then I will grant the 9 application, then, in part, and approve the retention of those 10 twelve professionals that have filed declarations, and then 11
    I'll continue the matter as to the remaining professionals to 12
    the -- is that date -- November 19th date.
13
                          Thank you, Your Honor. And we'll
             MR. WALSH:
14 submit -- 15
             THE COURT:
                          Thank you.
                          -- a proposed order to that effect.
16
             MR. WALSH:
17
             THE COURT:
                         All right. Thank you.
18
                         All right, then I think, if we go over --
             THE COURT:
    while we're talking about our newly joined debtors in the Brody 19 20
    Mining and the Patriot Ventures LLC case, there are companion 21 motions to make certain orders and other pleadings applicable 22 in these cases.
23
             Ms. Hughes?
             MS. HUGHES: Yes, Your Honor. After our hearing in interim orders to that effect. And we included in the packages to all the creditors, of course, the interim orders and with, of course, as the Court is aware, language saying that, to the extent that anyone had any response or objection to the applicability of these orders -- of the orders for the new debtors, going forward, that we could receive objections until October 15th, and we received no word from anyone. So we actually submitted a proposed order -- proposed final order to the Court last week. THE COURT: All right. And I believe I have reviewed that order and, likewise, I have seen no written responses or opposition to either motion. So I'll grant both motions. Thank you. MS. HUGHES: THE COURT: All right, thank you. All right, then, Mr. Walsh, why don't we go back to

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. I believe Mr. Huebner was going to take the lead on -- the bottom of page 1, then, and start with the interim

MR. HUEBNER: Sure. Your Honor, it's Marshall here, of Davis Polk. Can I just chime in for one second?

THE COURT: Yes.

applications for compensation.

MR. HUEBNER: I apologize. Just, when one is on the phone -- as we tried to, ironically, control costs -- it's a little harder to interact with the Court.

If it pleases the Court, Your Honor. I just have a minute or two of preparatory comments that I was going to open the omnibus hearing with, but I thought the Court might want an update on, yes, further positive developments that Patriot is working on.

THE COURT: Oh, all right. Certainly, Mr. Huebner.

MR. HUEBNER: So since we last saw Your Honor, I think it's fair to say that it has been an utterly fantastic few weeks for Patriot. As the docket reflects, three of the four legs of the table that are necessary to Patriot's emergence from Chapter 11, in fact, were put in place thickly and firmly since we last had the pleasure of being before Your Honor. Those three are: in the first instance, the Peabody settlement, which is a global settlement of all issues among the debtors and Peabody and the UMWA, that provides very substantial consideration, from our former owners Peabody, both to the debtors and the UMWA, in exchange for what I think can fairly be called global peace among all parties.

The second settlement, Your Honor, is a bilateral settlement between Arch and the debtors, where Arch and the debtors -- and I should have mentioned that that first settlement also has the consent of the creditors' committee, as do all three transactions that I'm about to briefly describe. The second transaction, as I began to say, is the bilateral covenant between Arch and the debtors, under which, once again, in exchange for global relief, is Arch is providing certain liquidity relief and financial consideration to Patriot. And the Peabody-Arch considerations are quite important -- in fact they're critical -- to Patriot's emergence from Chapter 11.

The third transaction is our agreed term sheet, also reflected in part in the rights-offering procedures motion recently filed that represents a 250 million dollar backstop investment by the Knighthead firm and certain of its affiliates. It's a basic guarantee that we have 250 million dollars of junior capital, subject to fairly typical closing conditions, to fuel our exit out of Chapter 11.

Tables, of course, have four legs, not three -- which is why I use the metaphor of the table, not the stool -- because the last thing that we need to do is the last, sort of, material pillar of our emergence from Chapter 11, is address the top half our capital structure. In general, raising junior capital is the hardest thing to do, certainly on the distressed basis in connection with emergence from Chapter 11. And the consideration from Peabody and Arch and the new funding from Knighthead were the critical precursors of the last thing we need to do, which is to find financing from the market, to take out our approximately 800 million dollars of DIP facility, comprised of the 500 million dollar-odd first-lien facility agented by Citi, and the LC facility currently in the second position, agented by B of A.

I'm happy to inform the Court, Your Honor, that we have actually selected the agents for the exit facilities and are very hard at work in productive conversations with representatives of the capital market, to actually achieve the last leg of our table. We expect in the coming days to actually file a motion to approve the mandate papers, not, obviously, the exit facility, which is still being shaped, but the expense, deposits, fees and the typical things that go into engaging financial institutions, to work on an ultimate commit to exit financing.

So we're very excited, Your Honor, to be able to announce our momentum towards exit, which obviously includes the November disclosure-statement hearing that the Court graciously scheduled, and the December 17th confirmation hearing, which we fully intend to hold. It's proceeding quite paced and that there will soon be yet another motion filed to keep us moving assiduously towards that goal.

So just because part of the purpose of omnibus hearings is to keep the Court, and to a lesser extent other parties, advised of things that are going on in the case, since really all the news does appear to be extremely positive and encouraging, we wanted to advise the Court of that last piece; the first we obviously reflected in various filings on the docket; the last one is going to be reflected in a filing soon to hit the docket.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Huebner. That is excellent news. And I appreciate all the work that I know you and the other parties are putting into this to be successful in getting out of bankruptcy.

All right, then anything else, Mr. Huebner?

MR. HUEBNER: No, Your Honor, other than waiting to respond and help as is appropriate.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. HUEBNER: That is what I wanted to advise.

THE COURT: All right.

All right, then, Mr. Walsh, we take up, then, the interim applications for compensation?

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor, in whatever order would be convenient for the Court.

THE COURT: All right. I have them in alphabetical order by -- so let's -- why don't we start, then -- the first one that I have is Blackstone Advisory Partnership LP, who are the financial advisors to the debtor.

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. And as a global comment, we have not -- there have not been any objections filed to any of the fee applications. I know that certain of the parties have had discussions with the U.S. Trustee's office and those --

MR. HUEBNER: Yes, Your Honor, let me, if I may, jump in and help with that one, to be a little bit more specific and

1 precise. 2 THE COURT: All right. MR. HUEBNER: And I apologize for the -- any 3 complexity of being on the phone. 4 5 So the U.S. Trustee has been working with various 6 parties with whom it had confirmed your question. And we 7 communicated with chambers that Blackstone was one of four 8 firms as to whom the U.S. Trustee requested voluntary reduction 9 in their expenses, to resolve those and other concerns the U.S. 10 Trustee's office might otherwise have pursued. 11 We had actually provided the numbers in the form of amended order, to the U.S. Trustee as well as the creditors' 12 13 committee, showing the proposed reductions for the four firms; 14 Blackstone was one of those firms, which is why I paused for 15 just a moment and mention it now. THE COURT: All right. 16 17 All right, Mrs. Long, is there anything that you would 18 like to add to that? That's --19 MS. LONG: That's accurate, Your Honor. 20 THE COURT: All right. 21 All right, then, thank you, Mr. Huebner. 22 All right. So I believe there's been a reduction in 23 expenses, a little bit more than 4,000 dollars, by Blackstone?

That's correct, Your Honor.

Right, Your Honor.

MS. LONG:

MR. HUEBNER:

THE COURT: All right. All right, and then likewise,

I have reviewed the fee applications -- all the fee

applications. And I will, as always, remind all the applicants that there are many tasks to be completed in this case, and you should be mindful of being good stewards of the time and expenses charged as professionals in this case.

The Court certainly appreciates everyone -- everyone's efforts to keep fees and expenses reasonable under the circumstances. I do have a few reductions that I may make to some of the applications, and also there's some additional information I think most of the parties are aware that I am requesting. And on the applications where I'm requesting additional information, I won't make a ruling on that until I finish my review of the additional requested information. I'll apologize again for not making these requests sooner, but it always takes longer than I expect, to review fee applications.

All right, so on Blackstone, I have a few reductions that I will make as well; in expenses, in the amount of $2,556.83 for ground-transportation charges, some meal charges, external resear -- oh, yeah, there were charges on there from 2012; that's what it was -- a $20 charge for airfare; ground transportation of $457.52; meals of $989.40; external research of $15.95; and internal research of $378; and document production of $44.70. So since those charges are outside the period that we are requesting, I will reduce by that amount.

I'm also going to reduce by $80 for a charge for travel-agency fees that appear to normally be billed at $20, that I think were inadvertently billed at $40. There was local car service of $162.23, and an out-of-town car service of $109.03. So that's how I reached my reductions of $2,556.83.

Otherwise, I'll approve, then, the fees requested and then the expenses in that reduced amount.

MR. HUEBNER: Sure. Your Honor, as Blackstone is not here, may I just ask one mathematical question?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. HUEBNER: Since the U.S. Trustee's reduction was, I think, to write off all meals, I just want to make sure that, if you don't mind, maybe we'll just check the math and advise chambers whether the 4,000 already includes a full write-off of the 900-odd million dollar number -- 900-odd dollar number that the Court mentioned for meals, that we shouldn't have the same meals deducted twice.

THE COURT: No, you are correct, Mr. Huebner, we should not.

Mrs. Long?

MS. LONG: Your Honor, the U.S. Trustee was concerned about local meals. Our philosophy was the miners had given up so much in this case that, if the professionals would agree, we would think that it's appropriate for a voluntary reduction for local meals. Where typically people at firms such as the one in question -- Blackstone -- would charge up to a maximum of twenty dollars for a local meal if they were working in their office late, the thought was the miners were working overtime and they aren't getting twenty dollars for them working. And every one of the professionals that we approached agreed to that reduction.

So it was local meals, only, that were the subject of the reduction.

THE COURT: All right.

MS. LONG: Meals while traveling were still limited in amount, and we asked for some specific information from specific entities. But all the reductions are reflective of those local meals for those firms. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. All right, thank you.

All right, then, Mr. Huebner, what I'll do is, after the docket, I'll take a look at the backup as well, and ask you to take a look at it, and then you all can contact my office and we can determine if that's a double reduction or not. And we will --

MR. HUEBNER: Yeah, we'll --

THE COURT: -- and we can --

MR. HUEBNER: Yeah, we'll take care of it, Your Honor. We'll work to reply to chambers very quickly concerning all the spend (sic) more that is at issue, and we'll knock it out real fast and figure out the correct final number.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

All right, the next is Bowles Rice LLP, which is special counsel to the debtors. My review of that application -- and I'll approve the amounts that were requested.

THE COURT: Next is Bryan Cave, who's local counsel to the debtor. In my review of that, I will make the following reductions: I'm going to reduce $8,840 for the after-hours HVAC; I'm going to reduce the scanning charges of $2,750.40; and I'll reduce half of the copying and binding for the 1113-1114 hearing, of $2,648.25; therefore reducing expenses by a total of $14,238.65.

MR. WALSH: Your Honor, might I be heard on those issues, for a moment?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. WALSH: I think we probably should have explained some of those in the narrative, and I'll take responsibility for that.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. WALSH: These charges arise from our efforts to work cooperatively with the team at Davis Polk, in preparation for and during the 1113-1114 hearing. They requested if we had the ability to have a space where they could have 24/7 access, and we don't have the ability to do that in our main office space, because of the stairwells and those sorts of things.

And for reasons of client security, our other clients won't allow us to have non-Bryan Cave personnel with the ability to roam free throughout the space. So of course the Davis Polk folks were not going to go poking around, but our other clients don't know them and don't know that, of course.

So what we were able to do is -- there's some expansion space in the building that we use occasionally when we have large projects, and our landlord arranged to provide that space, which is separately secured. And the landlord did that -- did not charge us rent for that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. WALSH: But the after-hours HVAC charges did flow through to our firm, and so we put those on our fee application because the alternative would have been to send Davis Polk to a hotel to rent significant amount of space at a hotel. We think it would have been considerably more expensive.

So that's the way we handled that. We also put one of our copy and scan machines in that space; we have it wired into our network, because, as I mentioned, we use it occasionally.

And so that's what drove the copying and scanning charges in addition to -- there's was a regular copy job to produce the -- I forget -- 250 exhibits for the hearing, and 12 copies, whatever it was; it was obviously a very large copy job.

So that's where the HVAC charges come from, Your Honor. When we have after-hours HVAC charges in our own space, we do not charge those through. But this we treated as, effectively, an expense item, as the equivalent of renting hotel space for a war room, which effectively is what it was.

So that's where those charges come from, Your Honor.

We do think they are actual out-of-pocket expenses borne by our firm, although for the benefit of our co-counsel, and that's why we included them in our fee application.

We discussed the HVAC charge issue with Ms. Long at the time that we first put it on our monthly fee application; she understood the explanation. I'm not going to speak as to whether she thinks it's a wonderful idea. But we did talk about it and we agreed that putting it on our fee application was the simplest way to accomplish that.

THE COURT: All right. All right, then, Mr. Walsh, I will consider those comments and I will review, then, my (sic) application again and I will advise you if I change my mind about those charges.

MR. WALSH: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

All right, next on the list is Carmody MacDonald, local counsel to the creditors' committee. I will approve the application in the amounts that were requested.

Then we have Cole Schotz, who's creditors' committee conflict counsel. I'll approve the application in the amounts requested there.

Next is Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, et al., who is

Debtors' conflicts counsel. I have requested, and I'm looking for, more detail on the meal, transportation and travel cost;

I'll be looking for that within seven days and that can be sent directly to my chambers.

Next is Davis Polk, Debtors' counsel. They are aware -- I'm looking for some detail on expenses for travel, meals, outside-document retrieval, court and other fees and litigation support; and again, that can be sent directly to chambers.

Next is Ernst & Young, who's the independent auditor and tax advisors for the debtors. I'll make the following reductions to their application, as far as expenses are concerned: $147 for meals for five; $36.89 for an overtime meal; and $168.20 for dinner for three; for a total reduction of $352.09. I'm also looking for some additional information, which I think they're aware of, for delivery charges, for bank confirmation and Creative Services charges for preparation of bank confirmations and audit opinions and consent.

MR. PETERSON: Good morning, Your Honor. This is Lars
Peterson on behalf of Ernst & Young.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. PETERSON: If Your Honor would like me to clarify at this time the bank-confirmation charges, I'm prepared to do that. If you prefer that we provide it to you in chambers, we can do that as well.

THE COURT: Whatever would be your preference.

MR. PETERSON: Well, since we're here, Your Honor, the -- as part of the annual audit, Ernst & Young verified the bank-account balances and certain accounts-receivable balances, with Patriot customers. And some of these bank-account balances are verified using an online service, called Confirmation.com, and the charges that show up on Ernst & Young's expense detail describe a delivery charge for bank confirmation and that were linked to the American Express purchasing card. Those are charges from Confirmation.com for these bank-account verifications and they're passed through directly to Patriot on this fee application.

The charges that are described as preparation of bank confirmation and that are linked to the Creative Services charges on the fee application, those are similar but they're a form of verification, of either bank-account balances or accounts-receivable balances of customers, that were not available electronically through Confirmation.com and that were requested through paper requests. And Ernst & Young's internal Creative Services Group takes charge of preparation and printing and postage account-confirmation requests, such as these that are done on paper, and that's what the two charges are for the Creative Services Group that are described as preparation of bank confirmations. So they're internal Ernst &

Young charges billed to this account, from the Creative

Services Group. So we -- I mean, they are necessary expenses of performing the audit.

Does Your Honor have any other questions about them?

THE COURT: No. That addressed -- those were exactly the charges that I had looked at. All right, then I will complete my review, then, Mr. Peterson, and I'll let you know if there're any further reductions. But you have certainly answered my questions on that.

MR. PETERSON: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right, thank you.

All right, next on the list is GCG, Inc., who's the administrative agent for the debtors. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

And we have Greenberg Traurig, who's special counsel to the debtor. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

All right, then we have Houlihan Lokey, who's the tax advisors to the creditors' committee. There have been, if I can tell, about 2,000 dollars in reductions already on that one, as far as expenses? Am I looking --

MR. HUEBNER: Yes, Your Honor. A little bit more than that, but yes.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Yes, Your Honor, this is Matthew

Mazzucchi for Houlihan Lokey, the financial advisor to the creditors' committee.

I had discussions with the U.S. Trustee; we've agreed to a 2,500 dollar deduction for all overtime meal charges.

THE COURT: All right.

All right, then I will make, as well, the All right. following reductions: There's ground transportation of $114.91 for one person, not including the additional person that same day at $46.03, so I'll reduce by the $114.91. Similarly, there was ground-transportation charges of $112.73 on the same day that there was additional transportation for an additional person as well, so I'll reduce by the 124 -- I'm sorry -- by the $112.73. Similar situation: $124.48 for one person on ground transportation when there was a charge of $46 that same day for another person, so I'll reduce by that amount as well. There is parking of $142.40 on the same day when there's an additional $106.95 in parking, so I'll reduce by the $142.40. And likewise, another day when there are $80 in parking when there's an additional $80.21 for parking that same day, so I'll reduce those expenses by $80; for a total reduction, of those charges, of $547.52.

I have down here that there was a meal charge of $171.41 that was from 2012. I will check -- or, Mr. Huebner, I'll ask you to check -- or -- I'm sorry -- Mr. Willard, I will ask you to check and make sure that that's not duplicative of what Mrs. Long has already asked them to reduce. 1 2 MR. WILLARD: Will do that, Your Honor. 3 THE COURT: All right, thank you. And then there's travel meals that I will reduce by --4 5 there's $560 for seventy people; $56.06, $61.17, $42.74, $41.19, $38.30, all for one person. There's travel meals of 6 7 $119.70 for two people, as well as $144.33 in travel meals for 8 two that same day. There're additional travel meals in the 9 amount of $40.26, $63.47, $29.31, $32.66, $32.66, $51.10, 10 $26.33, all for one person. There are also $613.36 in one day for overtime meals, and $182.68 in overtime meals for four 11 12 people. So I'll reduce for $2,135.32. 13 And again, Mr. Willard, I think, there at the end, I 14 included $182.68 in overtime meals. We'll -- we can check that 15 out and make sure that we are not reducing twice for them. 16 And then finally, I'll reduce the legal fees $5,721 17 where there was no detail provided; for, we think, an 18 approximate total reduction of $8,430.84 in expenses. And 19 we'll firm up the exact number. 20 All right, the next on the list is Jack --If I can -- Your Honor, it's Matt 21 MR. MAZZUCCHI: 22 If I might inform the Court on the DLA Piper Mazzucchi. 23 charge, the 5,000 dollar disallowed charge, for a moment? 24 THE COURT: Yes. 25 MR. MAZZUCCHI: That was a separate matter which was

Apologize.

This pre-dated the Court's time. But there was a rather lengthy negotiation with the former U.S. Trustee, on the terms of our engagement, which was essentially settled. And all those fees were documented and the expense detail provided as well.

THE COURT: All right --

MR. MAZZUCCHI: So I might add that we could perhaps resubmit those for Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, I'll pull the monthly fee statement; I may have overlooked it, or maybe I looked at the fee application, although I think I have all the monthly fee statements. But I'll pull the monthly fee statements again and see if I have that information; if I don't, I'll have my law clerk contact you all to provide it with me (sic) and I'll see if I have it and I'll reconsider that.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right, thank you.

All right, then next is Jackson Kelly, which is special counsel to the debtors. There I'm looking for detail on travel, and that can be sent directly to chambers.

Next is Kramer Levin. I have a reduction of forty dollars for in-house meals, two on the same day, by the same person. And I also need, and have already been provided, some of the detail that I am looking for regarding expenses for document retrieval, other fees, travel and meetings. So I'll be reviewing that documentation as well.

All right, next is Mesirow Financial; they are consultants to the creditors' committee. I will make a reduction of $147.43. There was a trip and there were two rental cars when probably they could have done with one. Other than that reduction, I'll approve the fees in the amounts requested, then.

Next is Stahl Cowen, who is counsel to the salariedretiree committee. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

Next on the list, then, is Steptoe & Johnson, special counsel to the debtors. I have requested -- I believe I already received -- some detail on their travel expenses, and I'll be reviewing that.

And then lastly, I have Thompson Coburn, who's special counsel to the debtors. I believe they are providing me with some additional detail on the expenses, and I will review that.

Thank you, Mr. Warfield.

All right, and once I have completed my additional review, then I will contact, Mr. Huebner, your office for a revised proposed that we can plug the appropriate numbers into. MR. HUEBNER: Absolutely, Your Honor. Happy to do it. I also do want to confirm for the record that we did not in fact snoop around Bryan Cave and look at other people's documents, as Mr. Walsh previously suggested to the Court. THE COURT: All right, thank you, Mr. Huebner. MR. HUEBNER: Well, we did successfully find their snack and soda cabinet --THE COURT: Ah-hah. MR. HUEBNER: -- which was an essential victory for our very tired team. THE COURT: I understand. I do kind of miss that from being at the law firm. No one just leaves snacks and coffee and, you know, special creamers at my office, but we get by. MR. WALSH: Your Honor, I don't --MR. HUEBNER: Your Honor --MR. WALSH: -- I don't even know where the snacks are on the 11th floor, so I'll be following up with Mr. Huebner about that. 22 THE COURT: All right. All right, so I think that takes care of all the 24 applications, then, for compensation. So that brings us to the omnibus objection to claims 3014, which is the seventeenth omnibus objection. And I believe -- are we having some argument on that, then, this morning?

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor. This is the objection to the claims in what's referred to as the Pettry litigation -- the docket number of the objection is 4670 -- and it involves eighteen claims by plaintiffs who were all -- they were all plaintiffs in a single case in West Virginia State Court. The objection is based on res judicata and the Rooker-Feldman doctrine, as was the eighteenth that Your Honor disposed of already.

The briefing is voluminous, as I'm sure you've noticed, Your Honor, but there're really only three key points here: First, the case was dismissed on summary judgment.

Second, under West Virginia law, the dismissal is preclusive.

Notwithstanding the losing party's disagreement with the result, it is preclusive under Virginia law -- the Burgess (ph.) case that we cited in our moving papers -- and our objection makes that clear. And under 28 U.S.C. Section 1738, a federal court has to give the dismissal the same effect that a state court would give to it. Those three points, Your Honor, are sufficient to trigger the application of res judicata, or claim preclusion, and require disallowance of these claims.

The Rooker-Feldman doctrine is really a layer on top of that. I don't think it's necessary for the Court to reach Rooker-Feldman, because res judicata is sufficiently clear here. But the bottom line of Rooker-Feldman is that the only federal court that can review and reject the result of a state-court litigation is the U.S. Supreme Court; the courts of appeals, district courts, bankruptcy courts, tax court and the other federal courts cannot.

Much of the response by the Pettry plaintiffs relates to the automatic stay, and I would suggest to the Court the automatic stay is not relevant to this question. The automatic stay clearly did not apply to the nondebtor defendants, which seems to be the thrust of much of the argument. In some respects, much of the argument's not directed at the debtors; it's directed to what happened with the rest of the case. That's not an automatic-stay issue. It doesn't protect nondebtors. We did not come to court and ask for it to protect nondebtors, which is a possible outcome in certain cases, but it certainly didn't happen here.

And under the Dennis case from the Eighth Circuit, the automatic stay also doesn't prevent a state court from dismissing litigation in which the debtor is a defendant, as long as it's in a manner that's not inconsistent with the automatic stay. And I would suggest there's nothing inconsistent with the automatic stay that happened here. The case was dismissed and it went away; there was no seizure of assets, property of the estate; there was no pursuit of litigation against the debtor; any of the various other things that the automatic stay is designed to prevent.

That, Your Honor, in summary form, is it. The claims have been dismissed in state court and they have to be disallowed in this court as a result. And for those reasons, we would request that the objection be sustained and the claims be disallowed.

Unless Your Honor has any questions about our arguments, I'm happy to yield the podium to Mr. Basile.

THE COURT: All right. I do not have any questions.

Thank you, Mr. Walsh.

MR. WALSH: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Basile, you may proceed.

MR. BASILE: Thank you, Your Honor. This case is not like the eighteenth omnibus objection, Palmer litigation case; just to start out with that point. It's very different procedurally, and that's why Rooker-Feldman does not apply; that's why the automatic stay is an issue in this case and was not in the Palmer litigation. In that case, a motion to dismiss was fully briefed, argued and submitted to the state-court judge prior to the filing of the petition for bankruptcy on July the 9th, 2012 by the Patriot Coal debtors. Here, on July the 9th, 2012, the Pettry litigation was still in the throes of litigation; the matter on summary judgment had not been submitted to the Court, had not been submitted to the Court until November the 9th of 2012.

On July the 9th of 2012 when the petition was filed, the entire Pettry case should have been stayed because not only did the Pettry claimants have claims against Eastern -- the Patriot-related debtor in the Pettry case -- but three nondebtors in the Pettry litigation. Nalco Chemical, Ciba Specialty Chemical -- which is now known as BASF -- and Cytec Chemical, all filed cross-claims against Eastern in the Pettry litigation. As a matter of fact, on the schedule of assets and liabilities that was filed by the debtors, each of those cross-claims is listed, arising out of the Pettry litigation; Nalco, Cytec and Ciba's cross-claims are listed. So they were creditors from the outset of filing of the petition. And the debtor knew this.

So the entire case needs -- should have been stayed.

Judge Hummel -- the state-court judge, who did take some limited argument on the issue, not in a hearing but he did take some limited argument, which I referred to in the briefing - Judge Hummel acknowledged claims against the debtor needed to be stayed, but he rejected my argument made to him back in July of 2012, just weeks after the prayer for petition was filed - the petition for bankruptcy, rather. He rejected my arguments that the entire case should be stayed.

As the matter moved forward and the judge heard some summary judgment, he only heard summary-judgment arguments from the nondebtors, because Eastern had already withdrawn its own filed summary-judgment motions. So at the time that the Court dismissed all claims in the case, there was no summary-judgment motion that had been filed by Eastern that it was granting; rather, the Court, as a sanction against me -- and those are other side issues I'm sure this Court doesn't need to concern itself with at this time. But as a sanction, the court dismissed the Eastern case claims as well.

When I filed a Rule 59 and 60 motion challenging the court's various rulings, including these that are before the Court today, the judge admitted openly that he had made a mistake, he should not have dismissed the claims that were filed against Eastern, because it was in bankruptcy. attached as Exhibit B, in support of the Pettry claimants' response opposing the objection, those portions of the transcript from March 26, 2013 where the court openly admitted at the outset of that hearing, Mr. Basile -- essentially he said, paraphrasing, Mr. Basile, you got me on that, you're right, I shouldn't have dismissed those claims, they're However, by the end of the hearing, perhaps reinstated. because of some of the other challenges I raised with the judge -- one can't be sure -- the judge made a comment about he was going to be a catbird and he was reversing his earlier reversal and he was going to let the dismissals against Eastern stand, and kind of sarcastically said, maybe that'll help you on your appeal.

Well, I don't believe the judge knew at the time -and I will confess that I certainly did not know at the time, because I don't do bankruptcy law -- but I had no idea really that the relief for me at that time -- my clients -- was not in front of the West Virginia Supreme Court, where that appeal is still pending, but the relief was really here in bankruptcy, because only this Court has jurisdiction to determine the scope of an automatic stay.

And there are several cases cited to by the debtor, in its reply brief, that don't apply here. There is a general reference to a principle, stated in a couple of circuit court of appeals cases, that a bankruptcy court can't set aside a decision or a dismissal made by another court. Each of those three or four cases cited in the brief is referring to jurisdictional authority that the underlying dismissing court had, because it was a federal court.

So each of those cases cited didn't have any problem with a dismissal of claims against the debtor that might have occurred while the stay was in order, because a district court had made those rulings. And as the Court well knows, the district courts have original and exclusive jurisdiction of bankruptcy matters and decisions about automatic stay but also refer, of course, to this Court, to bankruptcy courts, most of the matters that are handled for bankruptcy. But when it comes to a state court, those -- none of those cases said anything about a state-court decision cannot be overturned.

The more recent decision out of the Eighth Circuit that is much more on point to what's going on here, Your Honor, and the claims raised by the Pettry claimants, and our opposition to the objections raised by the debtor, is In re Vierkant; it was simply ignored and not discussed in the reply brief by the debtor. That case is eleven years after Dennis v. A.H. Robins. And it is In re Vierkant that is on point because, in that very case, the Bankruptcy Appeals Court in this circuit said that the state-court judgment was subject to collateral attack because it violated the automatic stay. And that's what we have here.

In addition, Your Honor, there are a multitude of circuits that I have referred the Court to in my brief, where the circuits have said -- at least those that have addressed it -- you do not decide later after something may have transpired in violation of the stay that helps a debtor -- you don't decide at that point whether the stay violation was proper, depending on whether there was a benefit to the debtor or not, by some action of a court that was in violation of the stay; you have to decide at the inception of the filing of the petition for relief. In other words, when bankruptcy was filed on July 9th 2012, that is the time when you look at -- the stay takes effect, and anything that happens after that that violates it is void ab initio. And that is the holding -- that is the rule in the Eighth Circuit, along with the majority of circuits who have looked at this issue. There's only two that hold that a violation of a stay is voidable, but in this circuit the law is, violations of automatic stays are void ab initio. And you can't make the determination afterwards about whether a benefit to the debtor should sort of forgive that violation. If it's void, it's void, and all effects that take place after that are void as related to action taken in the case.

In addition, Your Honor, when -- because you refer to an examination of an automatic stay at the inception when it was filed, not later on down the line, you have to remember that this petition for bankruptcy was filed in the Southern District of New York, and the Second Circuit Court of Appeals -- where the Southern District of New York Bankruptcy Court sits, like this circuit court of appeals -- also holds violations of stay are void ab initio.

So the failure of the state-court judge, the failure of any of the nondebtors in the Pettry case, to seek guidance from or relief from this Court -- or the Southern District of New York at the time that the case was pending there before it was transferred here -- neither -- having not done that, having not lifted the stay, the stay is in effect. The stay affects all parties. And until there's a determination otherwise, that is the scope of the stay. Only the Court can modify it, as the Court well knows.

Further, in recent filings with this Court, you will notice, Your Honor, that there are a number of stipulations that have been filed as between the debtor and some of the state-court litigants in West Virginia in other cases, where they have agreed to modify the stay for limited purposes, mostly to pursue possible insurance coverage for claims. And that's the procedure that Your Honor knows is normally followed and must be followed. There must be an agreement or a ruling by the court, to modify the stay, in any action where the debtor is taking -- is -- the debtor is involved as a defendant or as a party.

And here, as I said earlier, Your Honor, it's not just claims by the Pettry plaintiffs; there were cross-claims filed by Nalco, Ciba and Cytec, and they're listed with this Court on the assets and liabilities sheet filed very early on in this litigation.

So, Your Honor, Rooker-Feldman does not apply. And in fact, the case law is patently clear with respect to Rooker-Feldman that the one exception that exists under the Rooker-Feldman doctrine is that state-court actions are subject to collateral attack if they have been taken in violation of a stay. That is the exception that you'll see all over the case law. It simply doesn't apply here.

And then there are procedural arguments as well, Your Honor, which weren't addressed in the opening argument, but I believe that there're procedural concerns as well. The omnibus objections, as I understand, Your Honor, both under bankruptcy law and according to this Court's own order that it entered, which established what the proper procedures were for filing objections, the Court referred to the permission the debtor could have to file omnibus objections, and added in addition that there were other issues that could encompass omnibus objections. And the Court clearly set forth on page 3 of its order -- docket 3021 is the docket number, at page 3; the Court described what was the scope of an omnibus objection, the scope it could take, and further specified what was permissible to include in an omnibus objection. Neither what is listed in the Court's order, as I read it, nor what is listed in the statutes with respect to what an omnibus objection can contain, none of that applies to this particular type of objection. And so I believe there's procedural flaws to the filing of the objection, as well.

So those are the majority of the points that I wish to state, Your Honor. And if the Court has any questions, I'd be happy to answer.

THE COURT: No, Mr. Basile, I don't have any questions. Thank you.

Mr. Walsh, do you have anything else, briefly?

MR. WALSH: A brief rebuttal, Your Honor. Let me

start where Mr. Basile ended on the procedural issue. The basis for this objection is that the debtors are not liable for these claims. How do we know the debtors are not liable for these claims? Because the West Virginia Court said the debtor's not liable for these claims. And that's one of the permitted bases, under Your Honor's order, for an omnibus

objection.

On the automatic stay, Your Honor, it's a shield; it's not a sword. The automatic stay protects the debtor. automatic stay, at least in some courts, protects one creditor against aggressive action, taken by another creditor, that might impair its interests. The automatic stay does not protect the Pettry claimants against the dismissal of their claims. That does not harm the debtor in any way; it does not harm any other creditor of the estate, in any way. And as we suggested in our reply, for that reason, the Pettry claimants do not have standing to assert that the automatic stay has been Nevertheless, as I mentioned in my opening violated. statement, it has not been violated, as the Dennis court teaches us.

On the Rooker-Feldman issue, Your Honor, I would suggest to the Court that there's nothing more fundamental in a bankruptcy case than a discharge. It's like the automatic stay and then some, Your Honor. And the Eighth Circuit has held that if a state court construes a discharge, it is binding if the parties return to the bankruptcy court and try and obtain a different interpretation of the discharge. It's binding under Rooker-Feldman. The state-court decision that goes all the way to a decision, that issue is done and the federal courts do not have jurisdiction to reverse that issue. If that is the case for the discharge, it is certainly the case for the automatic stay, Your Honor.

Finally, we do still have the issue of res judicata, Your Honor, which Mr. Basile talked about only briefly; he spent a lot of time on Rooker-Feldman. Res judicata is much more fundamental. Judges sometimes make mistakes. Juries sometimes make mistakes. But when a judgment is entered, that is the judgment of that court; and if it's a state court, Section 1738 makes it binding on a federal court. The full-faith-and-credit clause of the constitution makes it binding on the courts of another state. That's the principle of res judicata and that's how it works.

This isn't about whether the state court was right or wrong, this deposition of the merits in particular. The issue is, if a district -- that the state court has done what it's done and it is final, it is res judicata. And that's the basis for this objection.

PROCEEDINGS

THE CLERK: Please rise. The United States Bankruptcy
Court for the Eastern District of Missouri is now in session,
the Honorable Kathy A. Surratt-States presiding.

THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.

IN UNISON: Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Good morning. All right, this is a status hearing in the Patriot Coal Corporation case. Let me start first with appearances in the courtroom.

MR. WALSH: Good morning, Your Honor. Brian Walsh and Laura Hughes for the debtors.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. WILLARD: Good morning, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Greg Willard and Angie Schisler from Carmody MacDonald, on behalf of the official unsecured creditors' committee. I'd also like to mention, Your Honor, not appearing as counsel but appearing, should Your Honor have questions -- factual questions regarding their fee applications: on behalf of Houlihan, Matthew Mazzucchi; and on behalf of Mesirow, Adriana Vidal. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Good morning.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Good morning.

MS. LONG: Good morning, Your Honor. Leonora Long on behalf of the United States Trustee.

THE COURT: Good morning.

1	THE COURT: Good morning.
2	Ms. Saavedra on behalf of Citibank?
3	MS. SAAVEDRA: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
4	THE COURT: Good morning.
5	Mr. Cohen on behalf of the official committee of
6	salaried retirees?
7	MR. J. COHEN: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
8	THE COURT: Good morning.
9	And Mr. Peterson on behalf of Ernst & Young?
10	MR. PETERSON: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor.
11	THE COURT: All right. Good morning.
12	All right, and I'll remind everybody on the phone, if
13	you would please keep your phone on mute except when speaking;
14	that makes things run better here in the courtroom.
15	All right. Then, Mr. Walsh, I'm going to jump around
16	on the docket this morning, but I'm sure you'll follow along
17	with me.
18	MR. WALSH: Certainly.
19	THE COURT: All right, let's start. On page 1 there's
20	a number of claim objections that have been continued, motions
21	to amend claims, things of that nature; I'll just announce for
22	the record: the third omnibus objection; the fifth omnibus
23	objections, with the responses by two parties; the tenth
24	omnibus objection and a response; motion to amend claim, filed
25	by Michelin of North America; there's an omnibus objection to claim 914 and others, filed by Norfolk Southern; the fourteenth omnibus objection with the responses; and the fifteenth omnibus objection; that have all been continued to November 19th.

All right, then why don't we go over to page 3, at the bottom, and start with the omnibus objection to claim 1522, the eighteenth omnibus objection.

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. The eighteenth omnibus objection to what we refer to as the Palmer litigation involves twelve claims by plaintiffs in a claim in West Virginia State Court. The claims against the two debtor defendants -- Patriot Coal Corporation and Eastern -- were dismissed for failure to state a claim. And we've objected and requested the claims be disallowed on the basis of res judicata and the Rooker-Feldman doctrine. There has been no response from the claimants to that objection, and we request that it be sustained and those claims be disallowed.

THE COURT: All right, and likewise, the Court has seen no written response, so I'll sustain the objection. The claims will be disallowed.

All right, let's just keep going down the docket there. Next is the application to employ Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, as special labor-relations counsel. I see no written objections and I reviewed the application.

MR. WALSH: We are aware of no objections either, Your Honor. And --

THE COURT: All right, then I will approve that application.

MR. WALSH: Very good. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. The next is the omnibus application to expand the retention of professionals to include the new debtors.

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor. This is a matter that came up at our first-day hearing -- came up in the discussion in our first-day hearing, for the new debtors. As I mentioned, we discussed with the U.S. Trustee's office how we can get professionals retained without forcing everybody to spend a lot of money that the estate would have to pay for in a complicated process. And so this is what we came up with.

The motion addresses sixteen firms that work on behalf of the debtor; twelve of them have filed supporting declarations at this point, including a few that were filed yesterday. We would plan to follow up with the others to get those declarations on file, or perhaps in some cases the professionals know that they absolutely have no need whatsoever to do work for these two debtors, in which case we may withdraw as to those professionals, and that is Blackstone, Bowles Rice, Ernst & Young, and Veritas. So as I mentioned, we'll follow up with those.

1 declarations, and to continue it as to the four others, if 2
    that's acceptable to the Court.
 3
             THE COURT:
                          All right --
             MR. WALSH:
                         And of course --
 4
5
             THE COURT:
                          -- that is.
6
             MR. WALSH:
                         -- I'm happy to answer any questions you 7 may have.
8
             THE COURT: All right, then I will grant the 9 application, then, in part, and approve the retention of those 10 twelve professionals that have filed declarations, and then 11
    I'll continue the matter as to the remaining professionals to 12
    the -- is that date -- November 19th date.
13
                          Thank you, Your Honor. And we'll
             MR. WALSH:
14 submit -- 15
             THE COURT:
                          Thank you.
                          -- a proposed order to that effect.
16
             MR. WALSH:
17
             THE COURT:
                         All right. Thank you.
18
                         All right, then I think, if we go over --
             THE COURT:
    while we're talking about our newly joined debtors in the Brody
19 20
    Mining and the Patriot Ventures LLC case, there are companion 21
    motions to make certain orders and other pleadings applicable 22
    in these cases.
23
             Ms. Hughes?
24
             MS. HUGHES: Yes, Your Honor. After our hearing in interim orders to that effect. And we included in the packages to all the creditors, of course, the interim orders and with, of course, as the Court is aware, language saying that, to the extent that anyone had any response or objection to the applicability of these orders -- of the orders for the new debtors, going forward, that we could receive objections until October 15th, and we received no word from anyone. So we actually submitted a proposed order -- proposed final order to the Court last week. THE COURT: All right. And I believe I have reviewed that order and, likewise, I have seen no written responses or opposition to either motion. So I'll grant both motions. Thank you. MS. HUGHES: THE COURT: All right, thank you. All right, then, Mr. Walsh, why don't we go back to

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. I believe Mr. Huebner was going to take the lead on -- the bottom of page 1, then, and start with the interim

MR. HUEBNER: Sure. Your Honor, it's Marshall here, of Davis Polk. Can I just chime in for one second?

THE COURT: Yes.

applications for compensation.

MR. HUEBNER: I apologize. Just, when one is on the phone -- as we tried to, ironically, control costs -- it's a little harder to interact with the Court.

If it pleases the Court, Your Honor. I just have a minute or two of preparatory comments that I was going to open the omnibus hearing with, but I thought the Court might want an update on, yes, further positive developments that Patriot is working on.

THE COURT: Oh, all right. Certainly, Mr. Huebner.

MR. HUEBNER: So since we last saw Your Honor, I think it's fair to say that it has been an utterly fantastic few weeks for Patriot. As the docket reflects, three of the four legs of the table that are necessary to Patriot's emergence from Chapter 11, in fact, were put in place thickly and firmly since we last had the pleasure of being before Your Honor. Those three are: in the first instance, the Peabody settlement, which is a global settlement of all issues among the debtors and Peabody and the UMWA, that provides very substantial consideration, from our former owners Peabody, both to the debtors and the UMWA, in exchange for what I think can fairly be called global peace among all parties.

The second settlement, Your Honor, is a bilateral settlement between Arch and the debtors, where Arch and the debtors -- and I should have mentioned that that first settlement also has the consent of the creditors' committee, as do all three transactions that I'm about to briefly describe. The second transaction, as I began to say, is the bilateral covenant between Arch and the debtors, under which, once again, in exchange for global relief, is Arch is providing certain liquidity relief and financial consideration to Patriot. And the Peabody-Arch considerations are quite important -- in fact they're critical -- to Patriot's emergence from Chapter 11.

The third transaction is our agreed term sheet, also reflected in part in the rights-offering procedures motion recently filed that represents a 250 million dollar backstop investment by the Knighthead firm and certain of its affiliates. It's a basic guarantee that we have 250 million dollars of junior capital, subject to fairly typical closing conditions, to fuel our exit out of Chapter 11.

Tables, of course, have four legs, not three -- which is why I use the metaphor of the table, not the stool -- because the last thing that we need to do is the last, sort of, material pillar of our emergence from Chapter 11, is address the top half our capital structure. In general, raising junior capital is the hardest thing to do, certainly on the distressed basis in connection with emergence from Chapter 11. And the consideration from Peabody and Arch and the new funding from Knighthead were the critical precursors of the last thing we need to do, which is to find financing from the market, to take out our approximately 800 million dollars of DIP facility, comprised of the 500 million dollar-odd first-lien facility agented by Citi, and the LC facility currently in the second position, agented by B of A.

I'm happy to inform the Court, Your Honor, that we have actually selected the agents for the exit facilities and are very hard at work in productive conversations with representatives of the capital market, to actually achieve the last leg of our table. We expect in the coming days to actually file a motion to approve the mandate papers, not, obviously, the exit facility, which is still being shaped, but the expense, deposits, fees and the typical things that go into engaging financial institutions, to work on an ultimate commit to exit financing.

So we're very excited, Your Honor, to be able to announce our momentum towards exit, which obviously includes the November disclosure-statement hearing that the Court graciously scheduled, and the December 17th confirmation hearing, which we fully intend to hold. It's proceeding quite paced and that there will soon be yet another motion filed to keep us moving assiduously towards that goal.

So just because part of the purpose of omnibus hearings is to keep the Court, and to a lesser extent other parties, advised of things that are going on in the case, since really all the news does appear to be extremely positive and encouraging, we wanted to advise the Court of that last piece; the first we obviously reflected in various filings on the docket; the last one is going to be reflected in a filing soon to hit the docket.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Huebner. That is excellent news. And I appreciate all the work that I know you and the other parties are putting into this to be successful in getting out of bankruptcy.

All right, then anything else, Mr. Huebner?

MR. HUEBNER: No, Your Honor, other than waiting to respond and help as is appropriate.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. HUEBNER: That is what I wanted to advise.

THE COURT: All right.

All right, then, Mr. Walsh, we take up, then, the interim applications for compensation?

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor, in whatever order would be convenient for the Court.

THE COURT: All right. I have them in alphabetical order by -- so let's -- why don't we start, then -- the first one that I have is Blackstone Advisory Partnership LP, who are the financial advisors to the debtor.

MR. WALSH: Certainly, Your Honor. And as a global comment, we have not -- there have not been any objections filed to any of the fee applications. I know that certain of the parties have had discussions with the U.S. Trustee's office and those --

MR. HUEBNER: Yes, Your Honor, let me, if I may, jump in and help with that one, to be a little bit more specific and

1 precise. 2 THE COURT: All right. MR. HUEBNER: And I apologize for the -- any 3 complexity of being on the phone. 4 5 So the U.S. Trustee has been working with various 6 parties with whom it had confirmed your question. And we 7 communicated with chambers that Blackstone was one of four 8 firms as to whom the U.S. Trustee requested voluntary reduction 9 in their expenses, to resolve those and other concerns the U.S. 10 Trustee's office might otherwise have pursued. 11 We had actually provided the numbers in the form of amended order, to the U.S. Trustee as well as the creditors' 12 13 committee, showing the proposed reductions for the four firms; 14 Blackstone was one of those firms, which is why I paused for 15 just a moment and mention it now. THE COURT: All right. 16 17 All right, Mrs. Long, is there anything that you would 18 like to add to that? That's --19 MS. LONG: That's accurate, Your Honor. 20 THE COURT: All right. 21 All right, then, thank you, Mr. Huebner. 22 All right. So I believe there's been a reduction in 23 expenses, a little bit more than 4,000 dollars, by Blackstone? 24 4,148. MS. LONG: Right, Your Honor.

That's correct, Your Honor.

MR. HUEBNER:

25

THE COURT: All right. All right, and then likewise,

I have reviewed the fee applications -- all the fee

applications. And I will, as always, remind all the applicants that there are many tasks to be completed in this case, and you should be mindful of being good stewards of the time and expenses charged as professionals in this case.

The Court certainly appreciates everyone -- everyone's efforts to keep fees and expenses reasonable under the circumstances. I do have a few reductions that I may make to some of the applications, and also there's some additional information I think most of the parties are aware that I am requesting. And on the applications where I'm requesting additional information, I won't make a ruling on that until I finish my review of the additional requested information. I'll apologize again for not making these requests sooner, but it always takes longer than I expect, to review fee applications.

All right, so on Blackstone, I have a few reductions that I will make as well; in expenses, in the amount of $2,556.83 for ground-transportation charges, some meal charges, external resear -- oh, yeah, there were charges on there from 2012; that's what it was -- a $20 charge for airfare; ground transportation of $457.52; meals of $989.40; external research of $15.95; and internal research of $378; and document production of $44.70. So since those charges are outside the period that we are requesting, I will reduce by that amount.

I'm also going to reduce by $80 for a charge for travel-agency fees that appear to normally be billed at $20, that I think were inadvertently billed at $40. There was local car service of $162.23, and an out-of-town car service of $109.03. So that's how I reached my reductions of $2,556.83.

Otherwise, I'll approve, then, the fees requested and then the expenses in that reduced amount.

MR. HUEBNER: Sure. Your Honor, as Blackstone is not here, may I just ask one mathematical question?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. HUEBNER: Since the U.S. Trustee's reduction was, I think, to write off all meals, I just want to make sure that, if you don't mind, maybe we'll just check the math and advise chambers whether the 4,000 already includes a full write-off of the 900-odd million dollar number -- 900-odd dollar number that the Court mentioned for meals, that we shouldn't have the same meals deducted twice.

THE COURT: No, you are correct, Mr. Huebner, we should not.

Mrs. Long?

MS. LONG: Your Honor, the U.S. Trustee was concerned about local meals. Our philosophy was the miners had given up so much in this case that, if the professionals would agree, we would think that it's appropriate for a voluntary reduction for local meals. Where typically people at firms such as the one in question -- Blackstone -- would charge up to a maximum of twenty dollars for a local meal if they were working in their office late, the thought was the miners were working overtime and they aren't getting twenty dollars for them working. And every one of the professionals that we approached agreed to that reduction.

So it was local meals, only, that were the subject of the reduction.

THE COURT: All right.

MS. LONG: Meals while traveling were still limited in amount, and we asked for some specific information from specific entities. But all the reductions are reflective of those local meals for those firms. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. All right, thank you.

All right, then, Mr. Huebner, what I'll do is, after the docket, I'll take a look at the backup as well, and ask you to take a look at it, and then you all can contact my office and we can determine if that's a double reduction or not. And we will --

MR. HUEBNER: Yeah, we'll --

THE COURT: -- and we can --

MR. HUEBNER: Yeah, we'll take care of it, Your Honor. We'll work to reply to chambers very quickly concerning all the spend (sic) more that is at issue, and we'll knock it out real fast and figure out the correct final number.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

All right, the next is Bowles Rice LLP, which is special counsel to the debtors. My review of that application -- and I'll approve the amounts that were requested.

THE COURT: Next is Bryan Cave, who's local counsel to the debtor. In my review of that, I will make the following reductions: I'm going to reduce $8,840 for the after-hours HVAC; I'm going to reduce the scanning charges of $2,750.40; and I'll reduce half of the copying and binding for the 1113-1114 hearing, of $2,648.25; therefore reducing expenses by a total of $14,238.65.

MR. WALSH: Your Honor, might I be heard on those issues, for a moment?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. WALSH: I think we probably should have explained some of those in the narrative, and I'll take responsibility for that.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. WALSH: These charges arise from our efforts to work cooperatively with the team at Davis Polk, in preparation for and during the 1113-1114 hearing. They requested if we had the ability to have a space where they could have 24/7 access, and we don't have the ability to do that in our main office space, because of the stairwells and those sorts of things.

And for reasons of client security, our other clients won't allow us to have non-Bryan Cave personnel with the ability to roam free throughout the space. So of course the Davis Polk folks were not going to go poking around, but our other clients don't know them and don't know that, of course.

So what we were able to do is -- there's some expansion space in the building that we use occasionally when we have large projects, and our landlord arranged to provide that space, which is separately secured. And the landlord did that -- did not charge us rent for that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. WALSH: But the after-hours HVAC charges did flow through to our firm, and so we put those on our fee application because the alternative would have been to send Davis Polk to a hotel to rent significant amount of space at a hotel. We think it would have been considerably more expensive.

So that's the way we handled that. We also put one of our copy and scan machines in that space; we have it wired into our network, because, as I mentioned, we use it occasionally.

And so that's what drove the copying and scanning charges in addition to -- there's was a regular copy job to produce the -- I forget -- 250 exhibits for the hearing, and 12 copies, whatever it was; it was obviously a very large copy job.

So that's where the HVAC charges come from, Your Honor. When we have after-hours HVAC charges in our own space, we do not charge those through. But this we treated as, effectively, an expense item, as the equivalent of renting hotel space for a war room, which effectively is what it was.

So that's where those charges come from, Your Honor.

We do think they are actual out-of-pocket expenses borne by our firm, although for the benefit of our co-counsel, and that's why we included them in our fee application.

We discussed the HVAC charge issue with Ms. Long at the time that we first put it on our monthly fee application; she understood the explanation. I'm not going to speak as to whether she thinks it's a wonderful idea. But we did talk about it and we agreed that putting it on our fee application was the simplest way to accomplish that.

THE COURT: All right. All right, then, Mr. Walsh, I will consider those comments and I will review, then, my (sic) application again and I will advise you if I change my mind about those charges.

MR. WALSH: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

All right, next on the list is Carmody MacDonald, local counsel to the creditors' committee. I will approve the application in the amounts that were requested.

Then we have Cole Schotz, who's creditors' committee conflict counsel. I'll approve the application in the amounts requested there.

Next is Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, et al., who is

Debtors' conflicts counsel. I have requested, and I'm looking for, more detail on the meal, transportation and travel cost;

I'll be looking for that within seven days and that can be sent directly to my chambers.

Next is Davis Polk, Debtors' counsel. They are aware -- I'm looking for some detail on expenses for travel, meals, outside-document retrieval, court and other fees and litigation support; and again, that can be sent directly to chambers.

Next is Ernst & Young, who's the independent auditor and tax advisors for the debtors. I'll make the following reductions to their application, as far as expenses are concerned: $147 for meals for five; $36.89 for an overtime meal; and $168.20 for dinner for three; for a total reduction of $352.09. I'm also looking for some additional information, which I think they're aware of, for delivery charges, for bank confirmation and Creative Services charges for preparation of bank confirmations and audit opinions and consent.

MR. PETERSON: Good morning, Your Honor. This is Lars
Peterson on behalf of Ernst & Young.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. PETERSON: If Your Honor would like me to clarify at this time the bank-confirmation charges, I'm prepared to do that. If you prefer that we provide it to you in chambers, we can do that as well.

THE COURT: Whatever would be your preference.

MR. PETERSON: Well, since we're here, Your Honor, the -- as part of the annual audit, Ernst & Young verified the bank-account balances and certain accounts-receivable balances, with Patriot customers. And some of these bank-account balances are verified using an online service, called Confirmation.com, and the charges that show up on Ernst & Young's expense detail describe a delivery charge for bank confirmation and that were linked to the American Express purchasing card. Those are charges from Confirmation.com for these bank-account verifications and they're passed through directly to Patriot on this fee application.

The charges that are described as preparation of bank confirmation and that are linked to the Creative Services charges on the fee application, those are similar but they're a form of verification, of either bank-account balances or accounts-receivable balances of customers, that were not available electronically through Confirmation.com and that were requested through paper requests. And Ernst & Young's internal Creative Services Group takes charge of preparation and printing and postage account-confirmation requests, such as these that are done on paper, and that's what the two charges are for the Creative Services Group that are described as preparation of bank confirmations. So they're internal Ernst &

Services Group. So we -- I mean, they are necessary expenses

of performing the audit.

Does Your Honor have any other questions about them?

THE COURT: No. That addressed -- those were exactly the charges that I had looked at. All right, then I will complete my review, then, Mr. Peterson, and I'll let you know if there're any further reductions. But you have certainly answered my questions on that.

MR. PETERSON: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right, thank you.

All right, next on the list is GCG, Inc., who's the administrative agent for the debtors. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

And we have Greenberg Traurig, who's special counsel to the debtor. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

All right, then we have Houlihan Lokey, who's the tax advisors to the creditors' committee. There have been, if I can tell, about 2,000 dollars in reductions already on that one, as far as expenses? Am I looking --

MR. HUEBNER: Yes, Your Honor. A little bit more than that, but yes.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Yes, Your Honor, this is Matthew

Mazzucchi for Houlihan Lokey, the financial advisor to the creditors' committee.

I had discussions with the U.S. Trustee; we've agreed to a 2,500 dollar deduction for all overtime meal charges.

THE COURT: All right.

All right, then I will make, as well, the All right. following reductions: There's ground transportation of $114.91 for one person, not including the additional person that same day at $46.03, so I'll reduce by the $114.91. Similarly, there was ground-transportation charges of $112.73 on the same day that there was additional transportation for an additional person as well, so I'll reduce by the 124 -- I'm sorry -- by the $112.73. Similar situation: $124.48 for one person on ground transportation when there was a charge of $46 that same day for another person, so I'll reduce by that amount as well. There is parking of $142.40 on the same day when there's an additional $106.95 in parking, so I'll reduce by the $142.40. And likewise, another day when there are $80 in parking when there's an additional $80.21 for parking that same day, so I'll reduce those expenses by $80; for a total reduction, of those charges, of $547.52.

I have down here that there was a meal charge of $171.41 that was from 2012. I will check -- or, Mr. Huebner, I'll ask you to check -- or -- I'm sorry -- Mr. Willard, I will ask you to check and make sure that that's not duplicative of what Mrs. Long has already asked them to reduce. 1 2 MR. WILLARD: Will do that, Your Honor. 3 THE COURT: All right, thank you. And then there's travel meals that I will reduce by --4 5 there's $560 for seventy people; $56.06, $61.17, $42.74, $41.19, $38.30, all for one person. There's travel meals of 6 7 $119.70 for two people, as well as $144.33 in travel meals for 8 two that same day. There're additional travel meals in the 9 amount of $40.26, $63.47, $29.31, $32.66, $32.66, $51.10, 10 $26.33, all for one person. There are also $613.36 in one day for overtime meals, and $182.68 in overtime meals for four 11 12 people. So I'll reduce for $2,135.32. 13 And again, Mr. Willard, I think, there at the end, I 14 included $182.68 in overtime meals. We'll -- we can check that 15 out and make sure that we are not reducing twice for them. 16 And then finally, I'll reduce the legal fees $5,721 17 where there was no detail provided; for, we think, an 18 approximate total reduction of $8,430.84 in expenses. And 19 we'll firm up the exact number. 20 All right, the next on the list is Jack --If I can -- Your Honor, it's Matt 21 MR. MAZZUCCHI: 22 If I might inform the Court on the DLA Piper Mazzucchi. 23 charge, the 5,000 dollar disallowed charge, for a moment? 24 THE COURT: Yes. 25 MR. MAZZUCCHI: That was a separate matter which was fully invoiced, with all the detail provided in our monthly fee statement at the time. That was also a charge that's provided for in our engagement letter, for the cost of negotiating our successful engagement letter.

I know that this pre-date --

Apologize.

This pre-dated the Court's time. But there was a rather lengthy negotiation with the former U.S. Trustee, on the terms of our engagement, which was essentially settled. And all those fees were documented and the expense detail provided as well.

THE COURT: All right --

MR. MAZZUCCHI: So I might add that we could perhaps resubmit those for Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, I'll pull the monthly fee statement; I may have overlooked it, or maybe I looked at the fee application, although I think I have all the monthly fee statements. But I'll pull the monthly fee statements again and see if I have that information; if I don't, I'll have my law clerk contact you all to provide it with me (sic) and I'll see if I have it and I'll reconsider that.

MR. MAZZUCCHI: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right, thank you.

All right, then next is Jackson Kelly, which is special counsel to the debtors. There I'm looking for detail on travel, and that can be sent directly to chambers.

Next is Kramer Levin. I have a reduction of forty dollars for in-house meals, two on the same day, by the same person. And I also need, and have already been provided, some of the detail that I am looking for regarding expenses for document retrieval, other fees, travel and meetings. So I'll be reviewing that documentation as well.

All right, next is Mesirow Financial; they are consultants to the creditors' committee. I will make a reduction of $147.43. There was a trip and there were two rental cars when probably they could have done with one. Other than that reduction, I'll approve the fees in the amounts requested, then.

Next is Stahl Cowen, who is counsel to the salariedretiree committee. I'll approve their application in the amounts requested.

Next on the list, then, is Steptoe & Johnson, special counsel to the debtors. I have requested -- I believe I already received -- some detail on their travel expenses, and I'll be reviewing that.

And then lastly, I have Thompson Coburn, who's special counsel to the debtors. I believe they are providing me with some additional detail on the expenses, and I will review that.

Thank you, Mr. Warfield.

All right, and once I have completed my additional review, then I will contact, Mr. Huebner, your office for a revised proposed that we can plug the appropriate numbers into. MR. HUEBNER: Absolutely, Your Honor. Happy to do it. I also do want to confirm for the record that we did not in fact snoop around Bryan Cave and look at other people's documents, as Mr. Walsh previously suggested to the Court. THE COURT: All right, thank you, Mr. Huebner. MR. HUEBNER: Well, we did successfully find their snack and soda cabinet --THE COURT: Ah-hah. MR. HUEBNER: -- which was an essential victory for our very tired team. THE COURT: I understand. I do kind of miss that from being at the law firm. No one just leaves snacks and coffee and, you know, special creamers at my office, but we get by. MR. WALSH: Your Honor, I don't --MR. HUEBNER: Your Honor --MR. WALSH: -- I don't even know where the snacks are on the 11th floor, so I'll be following up with Mr. Huebner about that. 22 THE COURT: All right. All right, so I think that takes care of all the 24 applications, then, for compensation. So that brings us to the

omnibus objection to claims 3014, which is the seventeenth omnibus objection. And I believe -- are we having some argument on that, then, this morning?

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. WALSH: Yes, Your Honor. This is the objection to the claims in what's referred to as the Pettry litigation -- the docket number of the objection is 4670 -- and it involves eighteen claims by plaintiffs who were all -- they were all plaintiffs in a single case in West Virginia State Court. The objection is based on res judicata and the Rooker-Feldman doctrine, as was the eighteenth that Your Honor disposed of already.

The briefing is voluminous, as I'm sure you've noticed, Your Honor, but there're really only three key points here: First, the case was dismissed on summary judgment.

Second, under West Virginia law, the dismissal is preclusive.

Notwithstanding the losing party's disagreement with the result, it is preclusive under Virginia law -- the Burgess (ph.) case that we cited in our moving papers -- and our objection makes that clear. And under 28 U.S.C. Section 1738, a federal court has to give the dismissal the same effect that a state court would give to it. Those three points, Your Honor, are sufficient to trigger the application of res judicata, or claim preclusion, and require disallowance of these claims.

The Rooker-Feldman doctrine is really a layer on top of that. I don't think it's necessary for the Court to reach Rooker-Feldman, because res judicata is sufficiently clear here. But the bottom line of Rooker-Feldman is that the only federal court that can review and reject the result of a state-court litigation is the U.S. Supreme Court; the courts of appeals, district courts, bankruptcy courts, tax court and the other federal courts cannot.

Much of the response by the Pettry plaintiffs relates to the automatic stay, and I would suggest to the Court the automatic stay is not relevant to this question. The automatic stay clearly did not apply to the nondebtor defendants, which seems to be the thrust of much of the argument. In some respects, much of the argument's not directed at the debtors; it's directed to what happened with the rest of the case. That's not an automatic-stay issue. It doesn't protect nondebtors. We did not come to court and ask for it to protect nondebtors, which is a possible outcome in certain cases, but it certainly didn't happen here.

And under the Dennis case from the Eighth Circuit, the automatic stay also doesn't prevent a state court from dismissing litigation in which the debtor is a defendant, as long as it's in a manner that's not inconsistent with the automatic stay. And I would suggest there's nothing inconsistent with the automatic stay that happened here. The case was dismissed and it went away; there was no seizure of assets, property of the estate; there was no pursuit of litigation against the debtor; any of the various other things that the automatic stay is designed to prevent.

That, Your Honor, in summary form, is it. The claims have been dismissed in state court and they have to be disallowed in this court as a result. And for those reasons, we would request that the objection be sustained and the claims be disallowed.

Unless Your Honor has any questions about our arguments, I'm happy to yield the podium to Mr. Basile.

THE COURT: All right. I do not have any questions.

Thank you, Mr. Walsh.

MR. WALSH: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Basile, you may proceed.

MR. BASILE: Thank you, Your Honor. This case is not like the eighteenth omnibus objection, Palmer litigation case; just to start out with that point. It's very different procedurally, and that's why Rooker-Feldman does not apply; that's why the automatic stay is an issue in this case and was not in the Palmer litigation. In that case, a motion to dismiss was fully briefed, argued and submitted to the state-court judge prior to the filing of the petition for bankruptcy on July the 9th, 2012 by the Patriot Coal debtors. Here, on July the 9th, 2012, the Pettry litigation was still in the throes of litigation; the matter on summary judgment had not been submitted to the Court, had not been submitted to the Court until November the 9th of 2012.

On July the 9th of 2012 when the petition was filed, the entire Pettry case should have been stayed because not only did the Pettry claimants have claims against Eastern -- the Patriot-related debtor in the Pettry case -- but three nondebtors in the Pettry litigation. Nalco Chemical, Ciba Specialty Chemical -- which is now known as BASF -- and Cytec Chemical, all filed cross-claims against Eastern in the Pettry litigation. As a matter of fact, on the schedule of assets and liabilities that was filed by the debtors, each of those cross-claims is listed, arising out of the Pettry litigation; Nalco, Cytec and Ciba's cross-claims are listed. So they were creditors from the outset of filing of the petition. And the debtor knew this.

So the entire case needs -- should have been stayed.

Judge Hummel -- the state-court judge, who did take some limited argument on the issue, not in a hearing but he did take

some limited argument, which I referred to in the briefing - Judge Hummel acknowledged claims against the debtor needed to be stayed, but he rejected my argument made to him back in July of 2012, just weeks after the prayer for petition was filed -

the petition for bankruptcy, rather. He rejected my arguments that the entire case should be stayed.

As the matter moved forward and the judge heard some summary judgment, he only heard summary-judgment arguments from the nondebtors, because Eastern had already withdrawn its own filed summary-judgment motions. So at the time that the Court dismissed all claims in the case, there was no summary-judgment motion that had been filed by Eastern that it was granting; rather, the Court, as a sanction against me -- and those are other side issues I'm sure this Court doesn't need to concern itself with at this time. But as a sanction, the court dismissed the Eastern case claims as well.

When I filed a Rule 59 and 60 motion challenging the court's various rulings, including these that are before the Court today, the judge admitted openly that he had made a mistake, he should not have dismissed the claims that were filed against Eastern, because it was in bankruptcy. attached as Exhibit B, in support of the Pettry claimants' response opposing the objection, those portions of the transcript from March 26, 2013 where the court openly admitted at the outset of that hearing, Mr. Basile -- essentially he said, paraphrasing, Mr. Basile, you got me on that, you're right, I shouldn't have dismissed those claims, they're However, by the end of the hearing, perhaps reinstated. because of some of the other challenges I raised with the judge -- one can't be sure -- the judge made a comment about he was going to be a catbird and he was reversing his earlier reversal and he was going to let the dismissals against Eastern stand, and kind of sarcastically said, maybe that'll help you on your appeal.

Well, I don't believe the judge knew at the time -and I will confess that I certainly did not know at the time, because I don't do bankruptcy law -- but I had no idea really that the relief for me at that time -- my clients -- was not in front of the West Virginia Supreme Court, where that appeal is still pending, but the relief was really here in bankruptcy,
because only this Court has jurisdiction to determine the scope of an automatic stay.

And there are several cases cited to by the debtor, in its reply brief, that don't apply here. There is a general reference to a principle, stated in a couple of circuit court of appeals cases, that a bankruptcy court can't set aside a decision or a dismissal made by another court. Each of those three or four cases cited in the brief is referring to jurisdictional authority that the underlying dismissing court had, because it was a federal court.

So each of those cases cited didn't have any problem with a dismissal of claims against the debtor that might have occurred while the stay was in order, because a district court had made those rulings. And as the Court well knows, the district courts have original and exclusive jurisdiction of bankruptcy matters and decisions about automatic stay but also refer, of course, to this Court, to bankruptcy courts, most of the matters that are handled for bankruptcy. But when it comes to a state court, those -- none of those cases said anything about a state-court decision cannot be overturned.

The more recent decision out of the Eighth Circuit that is much more on point to what's going on here, Your Honor, and the claims raised by the Pettry claimants, and our opposition to the objections raised by the debtor, is In re Vierkant; it was simply ignored and not discussed in the reply brief by the debtor. That case is eleven years after Dennis v. A.H. Robins. And it is In re Vierkant that is on point because, in that very case, the Bankruptcy Appeals Court in this circuit said that the state-court judgment was subject to collateral attack because it violated the automatic stay. And that's what we have here.

In addition, Your Honor, there are a multitude of circuits that I have referred the Court to in my brief, where the circuits have said -- at least those that have addressed it -- you do not decide later after something may have transpired in violation of the stay that helps a debtor -- you don't decide at that point whether the stay violation was proper, depending on whether there was a benefit to the debtor or not, by some action of a court that was in violation of the stay; you have to decide at the inception of the filing of the petition for relief. In other words, when bankruptcy was filed on July 9th 2012, that is the time when you look at -- the stay takes effect, and anything that happens after that that violates it is void ab initio. And that is the holding -- that is the rule in the Eighth Circuit, along with the majority of circuits who have looked at this issue. There's only two that hold that a violation of a stay is voidable, but in this circuit the law is, violations of automatic stays are void ab initio. And you can't make the determination afterwards about whether a benefit to the debtor should sort of forgive that violation. If it's void, it's void, and all effects that take place after that are void as related to action taken in the case.

In addition, Your Honor, when -- because you refer to an examination of an automatic stay at the inception when it was filed, not later on down the line, you have to remember that this petition for bankruptcy was filed in the Southern District of New York, and the Second Circuit Court of Appeals -- where the Southern District of New York Bankruptcy Court sits, like this circuit court of appeals -- also holds violations of stay are void ab initio.

So the failure of the state-court judge, the failure of any of the nondebtors in the Pettry case, to seek guidance from or relief from this Court -- or the Southern District of New York at the time that the case was pending there before it was transferred here -- neither -- having not done that, having not lifted the stay, the stay is in effect. The stay affects all parties. And until there's a determination otherwise, that is the scope of the stay. Only the Court can modify it, as the Court well knows.

Further, in recent filings with this Court, you will notice, Your Honor, that there are a number of stipulations that have been filed as between the debtor and some of the state-court litigants in West Virginia in other cases, where they have agreed to modify the stay for limited purposes, mostly to pursue possible insurance coverage for claims. And that's the procedure that Your Honor knows is normally followed and must be followed. There must be an agreement or a ruling by the court, to modify the stay, in any action where the debtor is taking -- is -- the debtor is involved as a defendant or as a party.

And here, as I said earlier, Your Honor, it's not just claims by the Pettry plaintiffs; there were cross-claims filed by Nalco, Ciba and Cytec, and they're listed with this Court on the assets and liabilities sheet filed very early on in this litigation.

So, Your Honor, Rooker-Feldman does not apply. And in fact, the case law is patently clear with respect to Rooker-Feldman that the one exception that exists under the Rooker-Feldman doctrine is that state-court actions are subject to collateral attack if they have been taken in violation of a stay. That is the exception that you'll see all over the case law. It simply doesn't apply here.

And then there are procedural arguments as well, Your Honor, which weren't addressed in the opening argument, but I believe that there're procedural concerns as well. The omnibus objections, as I understand, Your Honor, both under bankruptcy law and according to this Court's own order that it entered, which established what the proper procedures were for filing objections, the Court referred to the permission the debtor could have to file omnibus objections, and added in addition that there were other issues that could encompass omnibus objections. And the Court clearly set forth on page 3 of its order -- docket 3021 is the docket number, at page 3; the Court described what was the scope of an omnibus objection, the scope it could take, and further specified what was permissible to include in an omnibus objection. Neither what is listed in the Court's order, as I read it, nor what is listed in the statutes with respect to what an omnibus objection can contain, none of that applies to this particular type of objection. And so I believe there's procedural flaws to the filing of the objection, as well.

So those are the majority of the points that I wish to state, Your Honor. And if the Court has any questions, I'd be happy to answer.

THE COURT: No, Mr. Basile, I don't have any questions. Thank you.

Mr. Walsh, do you have anything else, briefly?

MR. WALSH: A brief rebuttal, Your Honor. Let me

start where Mr. Basile ended on the procedural issue. The basis for this objection is that the debtors are not liable for these claims. How do we know the debtors are not liable for these claims? Because the West Virginia Court said the debtor's not liable for these claims. And that's one of the

permitted bases, under Your Honor's order, for an omnibus

objection.

On the automatic stay, Your Honor, it's a shield; it's not a sword. The automatic stay protects the debtor. automatic stay, at least in some courts, protects one creditor against aggressive action, taken by another creditor, that might impair its interests. The automatic stay does not protect the Pettry claimants against the dismissal of their claims. That does not harm the debtor in any way; it does not harm any other creditor of the estate, in any way. And as we suggested in our reply, for that reason, the Pettry claimants do not have standing to assert that the automatic stay has been Nevertheless, as I mentioned in my opening violated. statement, it has not been violated, as the Dennis court teaches us.

On the Rooker-Feldman issue, Your Honor, I would suggest to the Court that there's nothing more fundamental in a bankruptcy case than a discharge. It's like the automatic stay and then some, Your Honor. And the Eighth Circuit has held that if a state court construes a discharge, it is binding if the parties return to the bankruptcy court and try and obtain a different interpretation of the discharge. It's binding under Rooker-Feldman. The state-court decision that goes all the way to a decision, that issue is done and the federal courts do not have jurisdiction to reverse that issue. If that is the case for the discharge, it is certainly the case for the automatic stay, Your Honor.

Finally, we do still have the issue of res judicata, Your Honor, which Mr. Basile talked about only briefly; he spent a lot of time on Rooker-Feldman. Res judicata is much more fundamental. Judges sometimes make mistakes. Juries sometimes make mistakes. But when a judgment is entered, that is the judgment of that court; and if it's a state court, Section 1738 makes it binding on a federal court. The full-faith-and-credit clause of the constitution makes it binding on the courts of another state. That's the principle of res judicata and that's how it works.

This isn't about whether the state court was right or wrong, this deposition of the merits in particular. The issue is, if a district -- that the state court has done what it's done and it is final, it is res judicata. And that's the basis for this objection.
